Running in parallel with the sporting events of the London 2012 Olympics, this international gathering was the largest business summit any British government had ever hosted.

Attended by the Prime Minister, the event took place at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office’s Lancaster House and required us to fit out a series of rooms, taking exceptional care to protect the fixtures and fittings of this distinguished building.

Working for Innovison, we created and installed a series of high-spec displays and conference sets to accommodate the many delegates as well as members of the international press.
